Robin Hood

Robin Hood was born in the forest, and he lives in the forest for most of his life. His story is hundreds of years old. In Robin Hood's time, in England, many people live in small villages on the lands of important Norman lords (from Normandy, now in France). Other people live on church lands. Life is hard for these villagers because they have to give money and food to their lord and to the church.

So village people love to hear stories about Robin Hood. Robin Hood is clever, strong and brave. He loves adventure and he likes to fight. He takes money from rich people and gives it to the poor villagers.

There are lots of famous Robin Hood stories. They are about beautiful Lady Marian, his friend Little John, Friar Tuck, the greedy Sheriff of Nottingham, good King Richard, and his bad brother, Prince John.

Many countries have stories about brave and clever heroes. But is Robin Hood only a story? Perhaps Robin was a real person and perhaps not. King Richard is real. He is King of England from 1189 to 1199. He goes to fight in Jerusalem. When he is away, his brother Prince John is the most important man in England.

The stories say that Robin Hood lives with his men in Sherwood Forest, near the town of Nottingham. Sherwood Forest and Nottingham are about two hundred kilometres north of London. Many people there say that Robin Hood really lives in the forest.

Robin Hood Meets Maid Marion in Sherwood Forest

Early one morning, Marian puts on boy's clothes and a boy's hat and wakes up Friar Tuck. Marian takes her bow and arrows. Then they leave the house and walk on the Great North Road into Sherwood Forest.

After some hours, the friar suddenly sits down under a tree.

'Please let's stop, Lady Marion' he says. 'We don't have any breakfast and I am very hungry!'

Marian laughs.

'I am sorry, Friar Tuck,' she says, 'You are right, we will eat now.

Stay here. I will take my bow and arrow, and catch some animals. "We can cook them here in the forest.'

Marian leaves the friar and moves quietly into the forest. She sees a deer. She takes out an arrow and puts it to her bow.

'Stop there, boy!' says a man's voice behind her. The man has a loud voice. The deer jumps and runs away into the forest. Marian is very angry. The man is wearing a big hood. She can't see his face.

'Well, boy,' says the man. 'Don't you know that you can't eat the king's deer? The Sheriff of Nottingham will be very angry.'

'I am not afraid of the sheriff,' said Marian, 'or of you. Go away - or fight!'
 'Fight with you?' the man laughs. 'But you are only a boy! Well, you have a stick and I have one too. I will fight with you -with one hand!'
 Marian fights well. She is strong and quick. With only one hand, the man can't win. She hits him again and again on his head. 'Stop, stop!' he laughs. 'You are young, but you are a good fighter.' He takes off his hood. 'I am Robin Hood. Will you come with me, and be one of my men?'
 'Robin!' said Marian, and takes off her hood too. She has beautiful, long red hair. 'Marian!' answers Robin. 'What are you doing here, in the forest ? Are you alone ?'
 'I am with my friend, Friar Tuck,' says Marian, 'and he is very hungry! But I think that he will be happy to eat at Robin Hood's table.'

Robin Hood

Robin Hood, the legendary hero of many English ballads, embodies the fight of the Anglo-Saxon villagers against their Norman invaders. He probably lived in the late 12th century during the reign of Richard the Lionheart.

When Richard left England to fight in the Crusades, his brother Prince John took the throne. He hated his poor subjects, stole their lands and persecuted all those who were faithful to the rightful king, Richard. Among the lords persecuted by John was Robin's father. Robin was still a boy when he saw his father murdered, his house burnt and himself left poor and homeless. In order to escape John's soldiers he hid in the forest.

He soon became the head of a band of villagers and outlaws fighting against the Prince John and the arrogant Norman masters. Robin and his "merry men" lived in Sherwood Forest. They lived on the King's deer and what they stole from rich merchants and churchmen, and they shared their money with the poor and the weak. They dressed in green in order to hide themselves among the leaves of the trees, they could use bows and arrows with amazing skill and they had many adventures.

Finally, Robin was mortally wounded by one of his enemies. He called for his bow, and shot his last arrow, asking to be buried where it landed. The arrow was found in Sherwood Forest and there Robin Hood rests forever.

Marian Goes to Sherwood Forest

Very early next morning, Marian put on boy's clothes and a boy's hat and woke up Friar Tuck. The friar took his staff and Marian took her bow and arrows. Then they left the house and walked on the Great North Road through the forest. After some hours, the friar suddenly left the road and sat down under a tree. 'Please let's stop, My Lady,' he said. 'We had no breakfast and I am very hungry!' Marian laughed. 'I am sorry, Friar Tuck,' she said, 'You are right, we will eat now. Stay here. I will take your staff and my bow and arrow, and catch some animals. "We can cook them here in the forest.' Marian left the friar and moved quietly between the forest trees. She saw a deer. Very quietly, she took out an arrow and put it to her bow.

'Stop there, boy!' said a man behind her. The man spoke very loudly. The deer jumped at the noise and ran away into the trees. Marian was very angry. She turned to the speaker but he wore a big hood. She couldn't see his face. 'Well, boy,' said the man. 'Don't you know that you cannot eat the king's deer? The Sheriff of Nottingham killed two men last week because they caught a deer.

'I am not afraid of the sheriff,' said Marian, 'or of you. Leave now - or fight!' 'Fight with you?' the man laughed. 'But you are only a boy! Well, you have a staff and I have one too. I will fight with you -with one hand!' Marian fought well. She was strong and quick. With only one hand, the man could not win. She hit him again and again on his head and across his back. 'Stop, stop!' he laughed. 'You are young, but you are a good fighter.' He threw back his hood. 'I am Robin Hood. Will you come with me, and be one of my men?'

'Robin!' said Marian, and threw back her hood too. Her lovely red hair fell down her back. 'Marian!' answered Robin. 'What are you doing here, in the forest

? Is nobody with you ?' 'I am with a friend, Friar Tuck,' said Marian, 'and he is very hungry! The deer was for him. But I think that he will be happy to eat at Robin Hood's table.'

She and Robin went back to the road and looked for Friar Tuck.

They called his name but there was no answer.

'Poor man!' said Marian. 'Perhaps he is looking for me. Perhaps he thinks that the sheriff's men caught me!' Then she told Robin about her father and the sheriff. 'I cannot go home now, Robin,' she said. 'I want to be with you here, in Sherwood Forest. Friar Tuck will marry us. Let's find him. Perhaps he will want to live with us.'

Daily life in a medieval town Information to display on classroom walls

Nottingham town

In the year 1300, Nottingham was a big town with a population of 3000 people. It was an important centre for buying and selling. There were two markets selling mainly leather, wool, clothes and pottery.

Travel

Most people travelled by foot or on horses. Travelling by road was dangerous – remember Robin Hood and his men were always ready to rob any rich people who passed by! That's why most expensive things were transported by water. Big towns grew up on rivers and near the sea.

The streets

The streets were generally very dirty – there were no toilets and people threw dirty water out of windows directly onto the street! There were animals in the streets, especially pigs because people needed them for food but had no space to keep them in their houses.

The town day

The day in a medieval town started at 4 or 5 o'clock in the morning and finished at 8 or 9 o'clock in the evening. Shops opened at 6 o'clock in the morning and most closed at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. People ate their first meal at 9 or 10 o'clock.

Fire and bells

The houses were very close together and made of wood, and there was not much water available, so fire was a big problem. Most people didn't have clocks or watches, so they listened to the bells ringing to know what time it was. Bells also rang if there was a fire or the city was being attacked.

Children

Most children started work at the age of 12 or 13. At that age, many children went to live in rich people's homes as servants or they worked as apprentices, often sleeping on the floor of shops and workshops. Children from richer families continued their education until they were 18 or more.

Answer these questions about life in Nottingham in medieval times. The information you need is on the classroom walls.
In pairs, try to find the answers to all the questions as quickly as possible.

1. What was the population of Nottingham in the year 1300?
2. What could you buy at the markets?
3. Why were the big towns on rivers and near the sea?
4. What animals could you see in the streets?
5. Why were the streets usually dirty?
6. What time did the shops open and close?
7. What time did people eat their first meal?
8. Why was fire a big problem?
9. Why were bells important?
10. What age were children when they started work?
